Proof of CPNI Statement of New East Telephony, Inc.

Our database is on an isolated, private network. Upon each inbound call; we verify the name of the account holder; as well as the existing phone number; the address of the account holder and the place they signed up or make their payment. If warranted; we will also ask for other identifying information such as a social security id; drivers license or relative information.

New East Telephony, Inc. does not have any mechanism of a internet based account access; as it relates to a traditional access line.

We are launching in 2009 a VoIP platform that is a white label resale line; and our VoIP network provider does provide a secure online access method that only the originating client will have access, via a customer generated code.

We also have strict policies in place that prohibit access to a customers account without the consent of the client. We train our CSR's about the process to verify and authenticate a customer record.
